

Clyde Waterfront in the Classroom

200
Lesson Plans
now available

A PROUD ARTERY TO THE WORLD.

A [★]river of learning, a stream of [★]ideas.

Check out your new resource right
NOW!
www.clydewaterfronteducation.com

Clyde Waterfront has greatly increased the number of Curriculum Resources on our educational website to support teachers in the West of Scotland and beyond to connect youngsters with all of the exciting developments that are happening along the Clyde. There are now 200 Lesson Plans available for teachers to use across 12 Clyde Waterfront related themes on www.clydewaterfronteducation.com

The resurgence of the Clyde's waterfront is being driven by a staggering £5–6 billion of planned public and private investment. The new homes, offices, visitor attractions and infrastructure are injecting new dynamism into the area, re-establishing the river as one of the main arteries of the Scottish economy. It is providing living, leisure and employment opportunities for thousands of people. We'd like you to help us ensure that young people locally take advantage of these opportunities.

Every subject area

We've set out to create materials that will complement A Curriculum for Excellence. Teacher writers from the region have created a huge, innovative suite of Clyde related Lesson Plans and associated creative materials that will support you in the classroom, no matter what subjects you specialise in.

For example, one of the first areas we've tackled is the bridges of the Clyde. And we show how these can be used to add colour and interest in subjects as diverse as mathematics and social studies.

Cross-cutting projects

We've also given you the resources to develop imaginative cross-curricular initiatives.

You might choose to have your pupils look at river usage today. You'll have access to materials covering tourism, general business development, community changes, ecology and numerous other facets of the topic.

Practical outcomes

Naturally, we want you, as a teacher, to benefit from the new resource. But we also want young people to see the value.

So, in the 'working on the Clyde' section, for example, you'll find not only information and sources on the history of employment on the River Clyde but also which new sectors are growing and what they are looking for in employees. There will also be opportunities for teachers to develop their own knowledge and strengthen their connections with employers through structured teacher placements.

ClydeWaterfront

About Clyde Waterfront

“Clyde Waterfront” is a partnership comprising the Scottish Government, Scottish Enterprise, Glasgow City Council, Renfrewshire Council and West Dunbartonshire Council.

Our vision is to develop a vibrant, thriving River Clyde, with people and communities at its heart

Working in partnership with the private sector and local community groups, we aim to create an internationally competitive ‘central belt’ for business, employment, living and tourism.

Throughout the 20–25 year project, Clyde Waterfront will represent billions of pounds of public and private investment, focusing on six key areas along the 20km river corridor. The plan has the potential to create more than 50,000 jobs, along with thousands of new homes and commercial accommodation.

It is fundamental to our success that local people benefit directly from the resurgence of Clyde Waterfront. Check out your new resource right now at

www.clydewaterfronteducation.com

ClydeWaterfront

